

The Old Brooks Farm and the History of Westport's Southern Shore

Welcome to a celebration of Brooks Cove at Westport's southern tip where ocean tributaries, small coves, and neighboring islands have provided shelter and opportunity. Throughout time, the land and surrounding waters have hosted fishing, farming, lumbering, boat building, apple growing, and respite from the city. Join us as we explore its history from the Abenaki to the eight generations of the Charles Stockbridge Brooks family that followed them.

This celebration and accompanying exhibit were made possible by the gracious support of the Bradford/Metzger/Harriman families who opened their homestead and remembrances to honor the legacy of this land and by the generous financial support of our sponsors.
